SITUATION SUMMARY

West Lake Incident, Kern and Los Angeles Counties

- A low-pressure weather system absorbing moisture from the south sparked severe weather, mudslides and flash flood watches and warnings across Southern California on Thursday evening.
- As much as 4 inches of rain fell in a short period of time in localized areas, portions of which were covered with golf ball-sized hail.
- Flash flooding sent water, mud and rocks rushing across Interstate 5 at Fort Tejon, stranding hundreds of vehicles and closing the major north-south thoroughfare. Some secondary roads were left impassable from mud.
- There have been no reports of serious injuries or deaths, as of this report.

Activations

- Los Angeles County EOC deactivated at 1830 hours on 10/16/15 and returned to duty officer status.
- Kern County EOC is activated at Level 2
- City of Palmdale EOC is activated at Level 1.
- The Los Angeles County Department of Public Health DOC activated on 10/16/15 at 0800 hours.
- City of Lancaster (Los Angeles County) EOC remote activation on 10/15/15.

Road Conditions and Closures

Per CHP:

- Eastbound and Westbound Highway 58 near Tehachapi is closed

Per Caltrans:

- Northbound and southbound traffic has fully reopened on Interstate 5.
- There are no vehicles reported stuck on northbound Interstate 5.
- Kern Co. and Fire are assisting with loaders to assist in removing debris.

Infrastructure & Utilities

- Union Pacific Railroad (UPRR) has arrived at the area of damaged track with loaders and dozers. Access is still being inhibited by Hwy 58 being closed eastbound from Bakersfield. No access to Tehachapi from Mojave. Initial assessment appears to be a high volume of mud as opposed to water eroding the track. Main track #1 could be reopened as early as this evening for train traffic at reduced speed.

Proclamations

- A Proclamation from Los Angeles County has been received proclaiming a local emergency as a result of flooding and debris flows affecting the unincorporated communities of Quartz Hill, Leona Valley, Lake Hughes and Elizabeth and surrounding areas in Los Angeles County. The proclamation is requesting recovery assistance be made available under the California Disaster Assistance Act (CDAA) and a Governor's concurrence.
- There are no unmet needs by Los Angeles County from the State at this time.

Eureka Weather:

A cold front is expected to bring showers and isolated thunderstorms to much of the region today along with cooling temperatures. Clouds and a few showers will persist Sunday and Monday. High pressure builds in Tuesday and Wednesday bringing a warming and drying trend.

Medford Weather:

Instability will result in a slight chance of thunder over much of the region today. The upper trough will shift east by Monday morning with showers lingering behind. A ridge will then build in drying things out by Wednesday.

Reno Weather:

A low pressure system moving inland from the West Coast will keep scattered shower activity chances through the weekend with a slight chance of thunder. Temperatures will cool off to near seasonal normal this weekend, before warming again next week.

San Francisco Weather:

A Pacific weather system will move into northern and central California today. This system may produce a few showers later this morning into the afternoon as a front goes across. In addition, there is a chance of isolated thunderstorms in the afternoon and evening as more unstable air moves in behind the front. Temperatures are forecast to cool back to near normal by Sunday and Monday, and then warm back a bit above seasonal normal by the middle of next week as high pressure builds over California.

WEATHER

WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION:

CENTRAL CALIFORNIA AND SOUTHERN SAN JOAQUIN VALLEY:

Sacramento Weather:

An unsettled weekend is forecast with cool temperatures and showers/thunderstorms. This will give way to a breezy beginning of the week with warming temperatures.

Hanford Weather:

A Pacific storm system will move in this weekend and bring cooler weather along with a chance of showers and thunderstorms, mainly over the higher elevations. Dry and warmer weather will return during the early to middle part of next week as a ridge of high pressure builds over the district.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA:

Los Angeles Weather:

Low pressure aloft will bring the possibility of mainly afternoon and evening showers and thunderstorms to the mountains and deserts through Sunday. Otherwise, coastal low clouds will persist during the night and morning hours through Sunday. For early next week, a gradual warming trend is expected through Wednesday to be followed by some cooling in the second half of the week.

Extreme Southwestern California including Orange, San Diego, Western Riverside and Southwestern San Bernardino Counties:

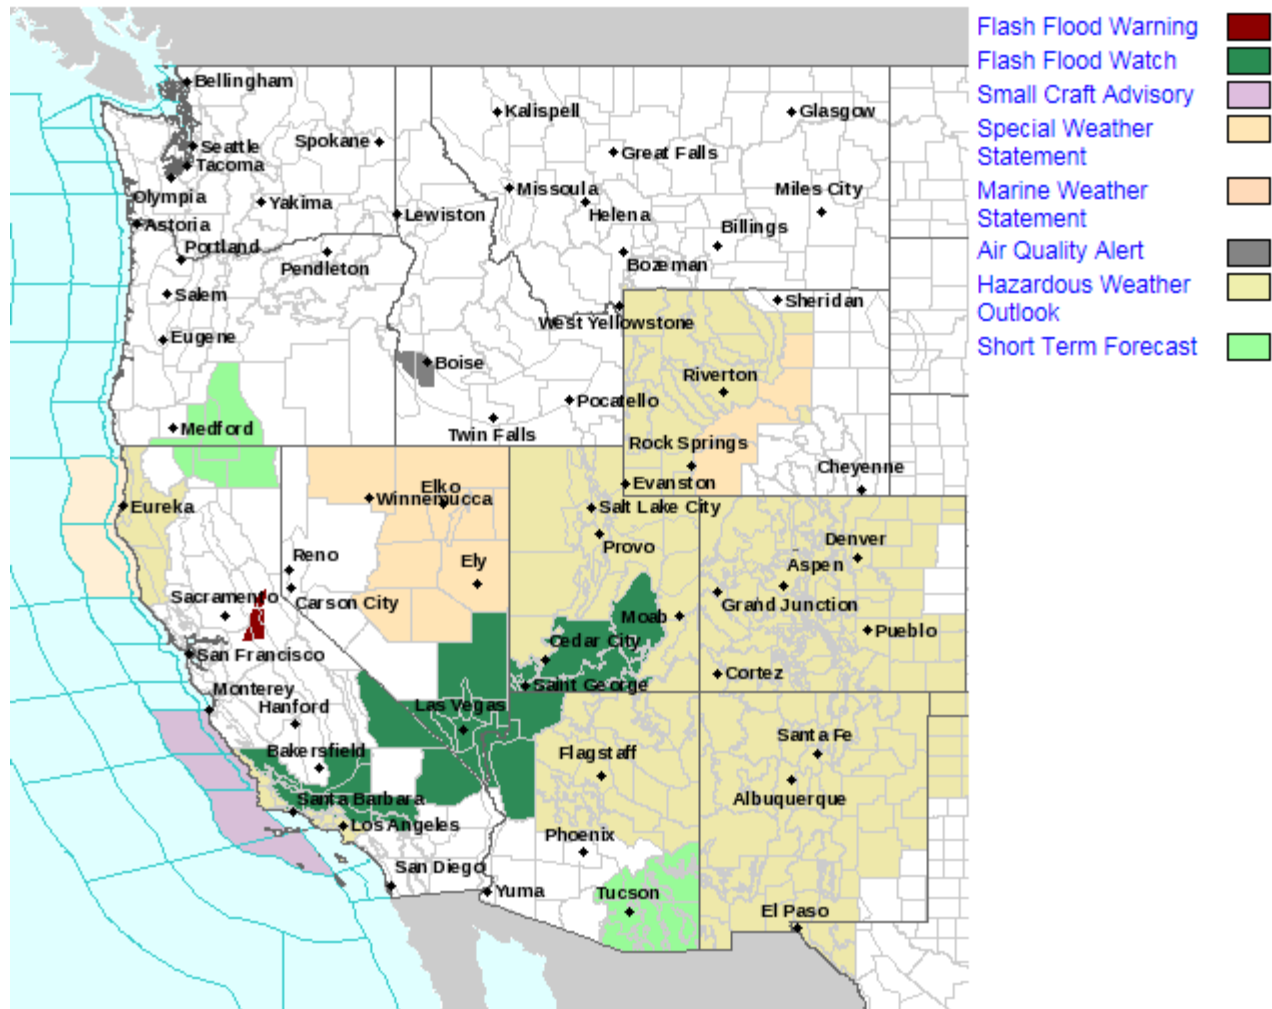

A slow moving upper level low pressure system over southern California will move into Arizona today maintaining the chance of mainly afternoon and evening showers and thunderstorms mainly for the mountains and deserts. A second low pressure system from the northwest will continue the chance of showers and thunderstorms for Sunday through Wednesday, also mainly for the mountains and deserts. Seasonal temperatures and drier conditions are forecast for the latter half of next week under weak high pressure. Weak offshore lower level flow for Tuesday and Wednesday will bring locally gusty northeast winds near the coastal foothills.

Southeast California Weather:

A series of slow moving low pressure systems will bring elevated chances of showers and thunderstorms to the region through the middle of next week. Showers and storms are possible again today and Sunday with a slight drying trend on Monday. This will be short lived however as a second low moves into the Desert Southwest on Tuesday and remains in place through Thursday. Drier air will move into the area late next week.
